

GRAPE SHOT IS FIRED AT CZAR

Russian Ruler And The Royal Family Narrowly Escaped Death Yesterday.

FULL PLOT IS REVEALED TODAY

Ceremony Of Blessing The Neva The Opportunity For Killing Off The Head Of The Russian Empire.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 20.—That the czar escaped a deeply laid conspiracy against his life and against the lives of the whole Romanoff dynasty Thursday is the firm belief of the Russian people.

Stripped of descriptive writing and explanation, the tragedy was this: The czar was standing at the altar of a little chapel built on the ice in the center of the Neva, between the bourse and the winter palace.

The annual ceremony of blessing the waters of the Neva had just been finished and the artillery salute, which is a part of the ceremony, began.

Twice there came the crash of guns. At the third report a hail of grape shot riddled the chapel, where the czar was standing. The czar was unharmed.

Policeman Is Killed.

A policeman, standing twenty feet away, was killed. An officer and three marines were wounded. The flagstaff was severed and fell to the ground. The windows of the winter palace opposite were broken, and the bullets fell in a shower in the great white salon, where a brilliant assemblage of ambassadors and court dignitaries had gathered to witness the ceremony.

At first the official view was that a terrible accident had happened. In support of the accident theory it was urged that grape shot had been served to the artillery early in the morning for use in the event of a clash with the strikers, and that a case shell had been placed in the gun instead of the usual blank saluting cartridge.

Battery Had Been Practicing.

Again, it was explained that the battery had been engaged in target practice and that a case shell filled with grape had been left in the gun. The shot, it has been learned, was fired from the third gun of the first horse artillery of the guard, the most aristocratic corps in the Russian army.

The titular commander of the battery that fired the shot is the grandduke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, a kinsman of the czar. He was not of course, with the battery when the shot was fired. The accident theory is universally dismissed by the public. It is pointed out that if the gun had been left loaded two days ago after target practice the fact would have been discovered when the gun was loaded for the salute.

Meant to Kill Czar.

The other guns of the saluting battery were pointed far above the chapel in which the czar was standing. The gun which proved to have been loaded with grape shot was aimed directly at the chapel, and that the bullets which passed directly over the altar where the czar stood during the sacred ceremony crashed into the chambers through which he had passed only a moment afterward. That the bullets were intended to kill him and as many of his entourage as possible is not doubted.

At 10:30 o'clock the czar, attended by the granddukes and a brilliant suite, inspected the regiments and naval contingents that were drawn up at the winter palace. The bands played the national anthem as the czar, wearing the uniform of the famous Preobrazhensky regiment, passed from regiment to regiment, greeting each with "Good morning, my children," and receiving in reply, "Good health, your majesty."

After the inspection the state procession passed through the vast and lofty halls of the palace to the imperial chapel. Preceded by senators,

Farrington; (2) for exhibit on dairy instruction and results of investigations, prepared by Prof. E. H. Farrington; (3) for the Babcock test invented by Dr. S. M. Babcock. The silver medals were conferred as follows: (1) for exhibit showing soil aspirator and apparatus for determining relative rates of flow of air chamberlains and stewards, the czar, supporting the dowager empress, and the Grand Duke Alexis escorting the czarina. They were followed by princes and princesses in the order of rank, the pages bearing the ladies' trains.

Display of Uniforms.

It was an imposing pageant. The men of the court were in military and naval uniforms, the ladies of honor in national costumes of red and white, the generals and other officers bringing up the rear.

After the services in the palace chapel at 1:15 o'clock the procession returned. The empresses and their ladies took their places at the windows of the white salon, while the czar, the granddukes and the clergy, gorgeously robed, descended to take part in the open air ceremonial.

The winter palace stands on the embankment of the Neva called the palace quay. The river now is frozen and covered with snow. At this point the river is some 300 yards wide. Immediately opposite the winter palace stands the gloomy fortress of St. Peter and Paul.

A few hundred yards lower down is a wide, open space, ended by the steps of the bourse. At the edge of this space were stationed the eight guns of the battery, the officers and men of which now are under arrest.

On the palace side of the river, facing the central entrance, had been erected a gilded pavilion, with a blue, star-spangled dome, surmounted by a cross.

The procession of priests and choristers, bearing tapers and sacred emblems, the standard bearers of the guards regiments, the czar and the granddukes, slowly ascended the crimson carpeted stairway of the pavilion. All were bareheaded.

The solemn service began immediately and lasted for ten minutes. It concluded with the metropolitan thrice immersing the crucifix in the waters of the Neva through a hole cut in the three foot thick ice. Then, stooping over, he made a gesture and dipped into the Neva the gold chalice already filled with holy water from the river Jordan. This chalice he handed to the czar, at the same time pronouncing the historic prayer for the river, its vessels, and their freights. The czar raised the chalice to his lips and a signal rocket announced that the ceremony was complete.

Bullets Miss the Czar.

Then the czar's salute boomed forth, and with the third gun came a harsher report, the significance of which already has been described. At first no one in the gilded pavilion seemed to realize what had happened. The Grand Duke Sergius noticed that a policeman standing twenty feet away had fallen to the ice, but thought that he had been overcome by the cold. Then the blood began to flow from the face of the fallen man and the grand duke realized that the czar had escaped an awful tragedy.

There was only a flutter of excitement in the pavilion. Through it all the czar remained impassive, unmoved. The procession reformed at once and returned to the winter palace, where, after a reception in the white salon, luncheon was served in the state dining room.

There was not a sign in the face or manner of the czar to indicate that only a few minutes before he had stood in the presence of death.

KILPATRICK WAS NOT GRATIFIED

Ex-Manager of The University Athletics Is Not Pleased with Questions.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 20.—"The trouble with me was that I was too honest for this bunch. That's why they're all knocking me now."

This is the statement of Charles H. Kilpatrick, former graduate manager of athletics at the University of Wisconsin, when seen shortly after his arrival from Chicago yesterday. He said the violent reports circulated about him in connection with his management of the finances of the Badger athletic association had been a great injustice to him and had in fact endangered his position with his Chicago employers, the A. G. Spalding Sporting Goods Co. When he was here, he says, many bills were contracted against the association by athletes, minor officials of the association and others. He said Crew Coach O'Dea took a trip east, athletes bought fine sweaters and other goods, ran doctor's bills and all without his knowledge or consent, and that, therefore, when he estimated that he would leave the association $2,000 to the good, many of these bills were still outstanding. It is known that a terrible system prevailed and that the manager could not prevent athletes and others from charging articles to the association. Mr. Kilpatrick is not accused of any dishonesty and a determined effort will be made to perfect or re-establish a business-like system. A student mass-meeting is to be held Monday night and action is expected to be taken at that time.

RATE FIGHTS ARE A SUCCESS

Lobbyists For The Big Trade Combine Meet With A Cold Reception At The Hands Of The Legislators.

Washington, Jan. 20.—The president believes he has the railroads defeated and that the administration bill, without any important amendment, will be passed before March.

In his recent conferences with railroad managers, at which they have tried to talk him out of his plan for a court with authority to fix rates, the president has told them that if no longer is a fight over rate legislation, but a battle between the railroad influence and congress, and that the people are watching it, not with any special interest in the legislation now proposed, but to see to what extent the railroad influence will prove effective.

He has told them that if they succeed in blocking the administration bill in the senate or emasculating it, their victory will be only temporary and costly, for the people, alarmed by the display of the power of the railroads, will demand and secure much more drastic legislation than that which he now advocates. Continued opposition to reasonable legislation, the president has repeated, will result in a cry for government ownership of the railroads that it will be difficult, and perhaps impossible, to silence.

GIGANTIC FRAUDS IN MAIL ORDERS

NUMEROUS SCHEMES TO SEPARATE FARMERS FROM MONEY.

Fraudulent Concerns That Advertise in Cheap Weeklies Keep Out of Government's Way.

P. T. Barnum never said a truer thing than when he stated that the American people like to be humbugged. The postoffice department of the United States constantly is battling the use of the mails to fraudulent concerns yet there are many enterprises which do extensive advertising, whose business is morally wrong though not strictly so in the legal way.

Certain mail order houses do an immense business in all the rural communities. They do not do their advertising in the newspapers, but transact the bulk of it with fake sheets which contain no news matter, but are filled with trashy stories inclined to make the young girl seek a career on the stage so as to wear jewels and silks or the boy to become a train robber or something equally as evil.

In a small town not far from Chicago formerly lived a man who in the space of three or four years amassed a fortune of $50,000 in the mail order business. He did no advertising in the metropolitan dailies, but paid immense sums to the cheap-story sheets. He bought nothing good. He was a careful reader of the newspapers and when a free occurred would immediately make a bid for the damaged articles and purchase them for little or nothing. Having secured them he would immediately advertise his wares. He never stated in his advertisements that the goods were damaged, but simply offered certain commodities for sale. A condition of the advertisements was that cash must accompany all orders or that goods might be sent C. O. D. In the latter case it would be necessary for him to guarantee the freight to the railroad company over whose lines the articles were shipped. Many of these goods went to the far south or the extreme west. When they arrived at their destination, if shipped C. O. D., the purchaser would generally pay the freight and the purchase price on the spot so eager was he to obtain his "great bargain." If the vendor happened not to have the articles in stock, the vendee wanted he would send something that corresponded to it as nearly as possible. When all things were taken into consideration, including freight, drayage and cost of goods, the purchaser probably had paid twice as much as he could get the worthless trash for in his home town. The seller cared not. He had sold his goods and obtained his money and was immune from prosecution for fraud, this was all he desired. Thus, legitimate merchants in the various rural communities of the country are injured and the vendee robbed of his money. It is stated that there are mail order houses running in the great cities of the country which do not do one dollar's worth of business in the places in which they are located, but make fortunes off the easy rascals. Of course there are many houses which do a legitimate business and sell goods strictly as represented.

Patent Right Swindlers.
The sale of patent rights has worked a huge fraud on more than one person anxious to make a fortune without work. A man will invent a certain article. It may be meritorious or otherwise. He will obtain his patent. Then he sets out to sell the right. He will dispose of the franchise for various states to parties for a good round sum. His patrons will dispose of county rights and they in turn will transfer township franchises to others. It is up to these last parties to sell the patented article, but when they set out to do so they find that there is no public demand for it. Those who have purchased the state and county franchises have in all probability got their money back, but it is those who control the townships who are liable to lose all. It is there any demand for the patented article the patentee still has a further advantage, for he has probably reserved the right to manufacture it. The chances are always strongly in favor of some lesser party to the transaction getting worked "good and proper."

TO KEEP WORKMEN FROM THE CANAL

Federation of Labor is Sending Out Warnings to All the Union Men

The American Federation of Labor is sending circulars broadcast over the country warning union men to stay away from Panama unless they have a contract before starting, as the most favorable conditions on the isthmus are inferior to those prevailing in the states. It brands as a canard the rumor that the work will be easy and the wages above the normal. On the other hand, it is declared that the work is hard, and considering conditions wages are below the recognized union scale.

Long Working Hours.
The working hours are from 6 to 11:30 a. m. and from 1 to 5:30 p. m., except for the professional and office men, and they are required to work only eight hours per day, and in some cases less. The scale of wages which will be paid by the commission is on both the gold and silver basis and the rate of exchange is $2.10 silver to $1 in gold. The gold standard applies to nearly all the American employees, though not a few are paid on a silver basis.

No Transportation Furnished.
The commission does not furnish transportation either way—the man seeking work will have to pay that—and the pay does not start until actual work is commenced, and employees are paid only for actual work performed. Steam shovel engineers receive $100 and crane men $105 per month, but the number is necessarily limited. Pitmen, drillers' foremen and steam shovel foremen are paid $75 a month; steam drill men, $50 a month; general foremen, of which there are about five or six on the isthmus, receive $150 a month; ordinary foremen and assistants, from $125 to $50 a month in gold.

Very Unhealthy Climate.
Machinists, blacksmiths, boiler-makers, carpenters, painters, masons and plumbers, 45 cents an hour on a gold basis for actual work performed; mechanical and building trades, 60 cents; artisans, 25 and 40 cents; and ordinary laborers, 15 to 17½ cents an hour in silver. The climate is said to be detrimental to health owing to the prevalence of malaria, to say nothing of yellow fever, scorpions and tarantulas.

REV. F. T. KOERNER WAS GREAT PASTOR

Brother of Rev. C. J. Koerner of This City Was Most Prominent in East.

The late Frederick T. Koerner of Brooklyn, a brother of Rev. C. J. Koerner of this city, who was called to the east by the demise, was one of the foremost clergymen in the Brooklyn conference, eastern district, of the Missouri synod. The deceased was born in New York in 1844 and he entered the ministry while yet a young man. He served six years in lesser positions in Brooklyn and was then called to the pastorate of St. Paul's church, one of the most prominent in the east. From there he went out three years later and brought into being the Emmanuel church, which he was pastor of at the time of his death. The founding of the church was in 1875 and the nucleus of the new organization was formed by eleven members of the St. Paul's church and himself. Today the property of the Emmanuel church is valued at $100,000; there is from $15,000 to $20,000 in the treasury and the membership is upwards of 1,000. Mr. Koerner was also treasurer of the Brooklyn City Mission and Tract society and a member of the board of trustees of the Lutheran orphan asylum at College Point, L. I.

Death overtook Rev. Koerner while at a church meeting Wednesday, January 11. He left the platform during the services, feeling agitated and nervous. He has been suffering for the past three months from shortness of breath, due to some heart lesion, and the cause of his passing away was a recurrence of his ailment. He died shortly after twelve o'clock of the same night.

The late rites were conducted last Sunday afternoon in the presence of a congregation that filled the main auditorium, the two galleries and all the available standing room and overflowed out into the corridors of the church, of which he was pastor while yet in life. The sanctuary was draped in mourning and on the coffin was piled a huge mass of floral tokens. Rev. F. E. Tilly of St. Jacobus church, Winfield, who for several years conducted the English services for Pastor Koerner, spoke of the qualities that endeared the deceased to so many. The remains laid in the church in the morning and between 9:00 o'clock and the time the services commenced, five hours later, a stream of sorrowing ones passed down the aisle for a last view of the body. And again after the services a host of 2,000 passed by the casket.

Whether the fight will be in Wisconsin or Illinois is not yet known and the Janesville sports are anxiously waiting the tip.

KILLS GERMS OF CATARRH.

Hymel's Goes to the Root of the Disease and Makes Astonishing Cures.

Catarrh cannot be cured by the use of pills, medicines and so-called system tonics. Under such treatment the germs of the disease will still live in the air passages and increase and multiply.

Hymel is the only scientific and thorough way to cure catarrh. Killing the germs in the air passages, it enters the blood with the oxygen, destroys the microbes in the blood and effectually drives from the system all traces of catarrhal poison.

Thousands of testimonials have been given as to the astonishing cures made by this remedy.

Mrs. Le Rundi, 76 Western Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, writes: "I believe Hymel saved my life. I am better now than I have been in thirty years. Many doctors, both in England and France treated me for catarrh, but I was not cured until I used Hymel."

Probably the strongest evidence that can be offered as to the powers of Hymel to cure catarrh is the fact that the Peoples' Drug Company will agree to refund the money, if you say Hymel has not cured you.

The complete Hymel outfit costs but $1.00, consisting of an inhaler, dropper and sufficient Hymel to last several weeks. This will effect a cure in ordinary cases, but for chronic and deep-seated cases of catarrh longer use may be necessary, and then extra bottles of Hymel can be obtained for 50c.

MAY BE CAUCUS NOMINEE

Cooper is Withdrawn From the Senatorial Race—Stephenson Is Dark Horse.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Governor La Follette appears to be assured of the senatorship. A caucus of administration assemblymen, at which 48 members were present, was held last night and it was announced after the meeting dissolved that 46 of the 48 pledged themselves to vote for Governor La Follette in the republican joint senatorial caucus which has been called for Monday night. Two members present, E. B. Winch of Marshfield and J. A. Fridl of Koro, said they were pledged for Judge Webb and were not at liberty to consider themselves released at present. There are ten senators whose votes will go to Governor La Follette. This will give him 58 votes, plenty enough to control the joint-republican caucus.

C. C. Gittings of Racine, manager for Congressman Cooper, said last night that Mr. Cooper's friends were released and that Congressman Cooper's name would not be formally presented to the caucus. It is understood that practically all of Congressman Esch's supporters were at the meeting last night. It is known that most of them will vote for Governor La Follette, although Mr. Esch says he has not withdrawn from the race. It has been known that a number of the Esch, Cooper and Webb members were in fact for Governor La Follette. Close workers for Judge Webb said early this morning that their man was still in the contest.

Two in Yet.
Both Judge Webb and Congressman Esch had conferences in person with Governor La Follette yesterday, and neither would say anything of the results as far as the senatorial contest was concerned. Both said they had pleasant talks with the governor. Congressman Esch said he talked over interstate commerce commission matters. In a short time, Judge Webb took a train for home. A few minutes later it was passed from mouth to mouth that Congressman Esch was willing to withdraw in favor of Governor La Follette. Then came a report that Congressman Cooper would not appear at Madison for a day or two later, and perhaps not at all. Next came a call for the first republican joint senatorial caucus for Monday night, the joint caucus committee having met a few minutes earlier in the afternoon in the private office of Secretary of State Hooper. Friends of Isaac Stephenson then announced that the Marinette admirer and close personal friend of the governor had sent an urgent message to Governor La Follette to get the senatorship and accept it, and that the reports of the Marinette man "laying down on La Follette for support were purely lies."

The Rumors.
Thus developments or unsubstantiated rumors of developments in the senatorial contest piled high on one another. It was apparent enough that "something big was on," but it could not be definitely defined until late in the afternoon, when word was passed among the administration assemblymen that a meeting for conference would be held by the administration members of the lower house in the evening. Then politicians who had been on the outside before that time said, "It's all off. La Follette is it."

The Meeting.
Last night the administration meeting took place with 48 members present, every one of whom, it is said, spoke as to his position on the senatorship, as to the wishes of his constituents, and all but the two Webb men above mentioned declared their preference for Governor La Follette. This is as it was given out by warm administration men.

Quarles Stands.
Friends of Sen. Quarles said their men did not take this news as a thunderbolt, but were still hopeful of the outcome. They said Senator Quarles' managers were cognizant of the real situation and were not alarmed by it. They also declared that the Webb supporters were still strong in line for their own candidate and had not "surrendered to Bob" and that the supporters of the La Follette had not "been annexed." This is how the Quarles leaders announced the situation at midnight.

The Decision.
Perhaps the most magnificent thing determined at the meeting last night, aside from the wonderful looking to Governor La Follette, was that only administration members will be allowed to participate in the joint republican caucus. The anti-administration republicans will be considered as not republicans. Just how such a rule was laid down and how it will be enforced cannot be explained, but members in the lead in the movement last night declare that none who at the polls and throughout the campaign last fall were doing their utmost to encompass the defeat of the republican ticket and to assure the election of the democratic candidates can be allowed to have a voice in the caucus of the party now for the purpose of nominating the party's candidate for United States senator. This situation suggests that the Quarles members will be absent from the caucus Monday night, voluntarily or otherwise, but that eventually it is by no means certain.

BASE BALL TEAM AN ADVERTISEMENT

Oskaloosa, Iowa, Supports Base Ball Team Merely as an Advertisement.

At the present time, when there is considerable talk of forming a stock company here to handle the financial end of the Janesville baseball team as a member of the state league, it may be interesting to note what the idea of Oskaloosa, Iowa, is, regarding the keeping of a baseball team in the Iowa league as purely an advertisement. The Oskaloosa, Iowa, Herald prints the following:

In an informal way it was decided at the league meeting at Marshalltown that a baseball club is worth at least $2,000 to any city in Iowa in an advertising way. This was figured as a basis for each club putting up one-tenth of that amount, or $200 for the franchise. In the course of a year the ball club is responsible for each town in the league being mentioned about 200 times in every newspaper of any consequence from Chicago to St. Louis and from Indianapolis to Omaha. It was figured that an advertiser would have to pay at least $20,000 for a service equal to that which the towns get for $2,000. Hence any town that had to pay out $2,000 or less to keep the club going is still ahead of the game.

MANY CHICKENS TO GO TO SHOW

Janesville Will Be Well Represented at the Delavan Show Next Week.

This show is the biggest one held in southern Wisconsin and birds from all over the state will be in competition. Janesville fanciers usually carry off a goodly number of the prizes at this meeting and it is expected that several blue ribbons will be returned with the birds when they are brought back.

One of the queerest pranks ever credited to a locomotive was done yesterday by engine number 508 at Harvard. She had been taken out of the roundhouse for a train service and was standing alone on the track in front of the house for some time, when she commenced to move. The turn table by chance was in line with the main track and the locomotive proceeded across the table, breaking them down. When in the house the engine stopped over the pit, doing no more damage nor threatening to move further. The accident was due to disordered mechanism.

An extra freight on the North-Western was wrecked between Kewaskum and Barton Wednesday. A heavy freight broke in two, the rear end crashing into the front end, piling up and smashing six cars and smashing several others.

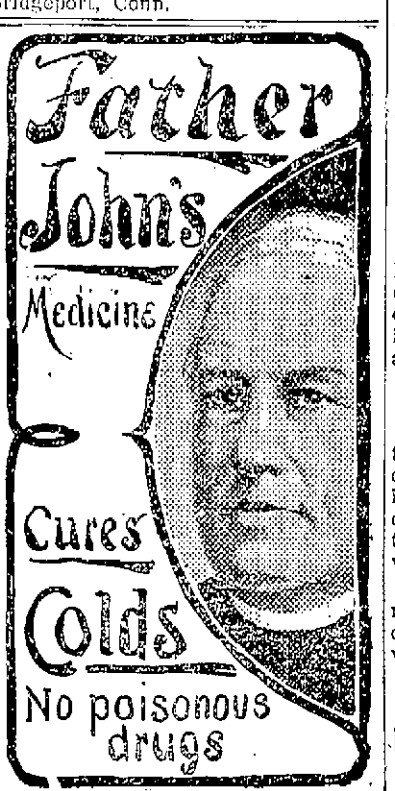

Conductor O'Brien of the Madison division has undergone an operation at St. Luke's hospital in Chicago. He was injured internally, as well as one of his knees, some time ago by his train coming to a sudden stop. His condition is reported as being improved.

RASH ACT OF A DESPERATE MAN

Shoots Himself Rather Than Face Arrest—Was Too Hard Headed.

Because he dared not face the charge of obtaining money on false pretenses, John Ohling, a farmer living southwest of Deloit, attempted to kill himself by shooting himself in the head. His skull was, however, too thick and he merely inflicted a flesh wound, from which he will recover. Ohling shot himself when confronted with a state warrant for this arrest, almost in the presence of a constable, who was there to serve the papers. He was left at his home by the officer when it was found that it might be dangerous to remove him to jail.

THE STATEHOOD BILL.

The bill now pending in the senate for the creation of two new states out of Oklahoma, Indiana Territory, New Mexico and Arizona has, through the care of Senator Beveridge and his associates of the committee on territories, been put in good form to safeguard the interests of education and morality, and a measure seems to have been evolved which awakens controversy only on the fundamental questions of two or four states. It appears to excite little or no opposition, so far as the union of Oklahoma and Indian territory is concerned. Such a consolidation is obviously the natural thing. The present division is of recent date, and was made in view of temporary conditions which disappear with the admission of the civilized tribes to citizenship. The new state will be only about as large as Kansas, and ultimately of about the same population. Nobody but those who want to multiply offices would think of making two small states of these territories. The proposed consolidation of New Mexico and Arizona, on the other hand, arouses bitter antagonism, and in both territories there are powerful influences which would prefer the continuance of existing conditions to statehood on other than their own terms.

Objection to single statehood for the two southwestern territories is chiefly based on the size of the new commonwealth. Fears are expressed that at some time it may so grow in population as to have undue weight in national councils, and then it is said that the area is too large for convenient local government. Some stress is laid also upon the racial differences in the two territories, but those who use this argument generally hasten to explain that there is no real antagonism between the Anglo-Saxon and citizens of Mexican descent. The advocates of single statehood, in reply to the objections, point out that the new state would not be so large as Texas and that its physical character renders a denser population impossible. They say that even if the wildest dreams of irrigation in the arid regions come true there never can be more than a million or a million and a half people in the united territories, which is by no means an excessive population for one state. The present boundaries are artificial, and there are no such natural differences between the two territories as to warrant representation in the United States for areas rather than populations; and while territorial individuality is considerably developed, if there is to be in the future any such growth as to justify statehood at all, it must mean the submersion of the present differentiated peoples by a new and homogeneous population. If New Mexico is to have only its present communities, dominated by present traditions, its fitness for separate statehood cannot be demonstrated, and the same may be said of Arizona, unless it is certain of a growth which would not leave it long under the New Mexican domination which its people seem to fear.

So far as opposition to union in either territory is based on the mere ambition of politicians to hold office and an unwillingness to share power with politicians in the other, it may well be disregarded. The existence of any desire on the part of the railroad interests in the territories to double the number of senators which they might be influential in choosing would be a positive reason for keeping down the region's representation in congress. There is undoubtedly, however, in each territory a community feeling and pride in local institutions which make consolidation unwelcome. These objections should be dealt with frankly and sympathetically. The aspiration of the people in Arizona and New Mexico is natural and praiseworthy, but they should consider the matter from another than their own point of view. Business is booming, mines are developing, prospects are bright with them now. Is their ability permanently to support a large population so certain that the nation, however sympathetic to their desires, can afford to forget the lesson of Nevada? The admission of Nevada was an emergency measure to aid in the accomplishment of a great national purpose, but everybody now confesses that it is not fit for statehood and thinks it a pity that it could not have been consolidated with Utah. Shall we invite the same misfortune without necessity? If the things should give out or irrigation fall below its promise, the very people who now make Arizona what it is and appeal to our sympathy in their desire to be in the union would go elsewhere and leave a rotten borough to help direct the destinies of their country. It is for the people of both territories to consider not merely whether the half loaf of single statehood is not better than no bread, but also, supposing they might by waiting overcome opposition and secure separate admission, if their complete aim might not be achieved at the possible injury of the whole nation. That may seem like a hard saying, but, as they aspire to a voice in the national councils, they should try to look at this problem from a national point of view, and remember that the country has already encountered serious dangers from reckless state making.

HOME PROTECTION

Every so often a new industry is promoted in the city and the public spirited citizens are asked to contribute to the bringing of an enormous corporation who only ask so many thousand dollars to remove their flourishing factory from some other city to Janesville. Janesville wants these factories and her public spirited citizens have always been free to dip down into their pockets and supply the necessary cash for the removal of the factory in question. Just the present time a growing Janesville factory is considering a removal from this city to another and citizens of another city are digging down to furnish the bonus to bring them there. Did it ever occur to the public spirited citizens that while they are seeking new industries to come to add to the prosperity of Janesville they might save a few thousand dollars by seeing that the ones which grow up here are given proper inducements to remain?

There are several senatorial bees which are hovering about certain distinguished heads in Madison. The senatorial bee is similar to the seven year locust except that it appears only once in six years but it buzzes hard when it does appear.

Senator Barney Eaton is to have an immediate trial and then he is to resume his seat in the state senate. That is if he is not guilty.

The January thaw is here. So is the slippery sidewalk.

There are some things that can not be explained in one day.

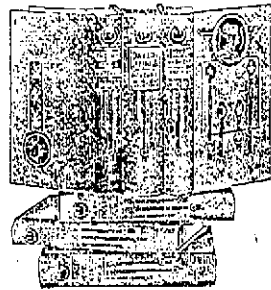

PRESS COMMENT.

Milwaukee News: More as a precautionary measure, it is suggested that the legislature pass an act making it a felony to oppress the people with any new devices or evasions of the laws after "the reforms" have been completed.

La Crosse Chronicle: Some reformer in the legislature could make a mark for himself, and prove his claim to the title of reformer if he would introduce a bill to wipe out the oil inspectors. That the state does not need the oil inspectors is manifest in the fact that no impure oil is found and consequently none condemned, although it is supposed to be inspected.

LIVED IN COUNTY SIXTY-SIX YEARS

James Pierce of Milton Passed Away Wednesday—Pioneer Settler of the State.

James Pierce of Milton passed away at the home of his son, Clark B. Pierce, in Edgerton Wednesday. He was eighty-seven years of age and during his life enjoyed the distinction of having resided in Rock county and probably in Wisconsin for a longer period of time than any other pioneer. The deceased was born in Alfred, Allegheny county, New York, Dec. 26, 1817, and in the summer of 1838 came with Joseph Goodrich to Prairie du Sac, where Mr. Goodrich founded the present village of Milton. Mr. Pierce remained in charge of Mr. Goodrich's little pioneer store while the proprietor returned to New York for his family and other settlers. He resided continuously in this vicinity for over sixty-five years. During the greater part of his life he engaged in farming, but held several town and county offices and was justice of the peace for twenty-two years. Since 1884 he has lived in the village of Milton except for the last year or two, when he has made his home with his son in Edgerton.

Miss Mary Volkman
At midnight death entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Volkman, 468 South Franklin street, and claimed their daughter Mary. The deceased has been ill for about eleven months and the end last night came peacefully. Miss Volkman was sixteen years of age and leaves besides a father and mother, one brother and four sisters—Paul, Lena, Sophia, Milla and Emma. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed and notice will be given later.

Miss Clara Phillips
Miss Clara Phillips passed away yesterday noon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Allen, 126 Chatham street. Miss Phillips was forty-one years of age and was born in Emerald Grove, where she resided until the death of her father about ten years ago. Since that time she has lived with Mrs. Allen. Funeral services will be conducted at the house at 1:00 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Rev. J. H. Tippett will officiate. The remains will be interred in the Emerald Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Thomas Hogan
All that is mortal of the late Mrs. Thomas Hogan arrived in this city at 12:30 o'clock this noon from Oshkosh. The remains were taken to Mount Olivet cemetery, where services were held and interment made.

Mrs. Stephen Saxby
Funeral services over the remains of the late Mrs. Stephen Saxby were held this morning at 9:00 o'clock from the home of her son, William Saxby, 10 South Main street. The body was taken to Edgerton where it was tenderly laid at rest.

Bunting and potted plants, smilax and cut flowers, gave to the West Milwaukee street headquarters of the local musicians' union a festive air last evening. The early hours were devoted to the game of clinch which was played at small tables, the prizes being awarded to R. H. Barlow and John L. Fletcher. The bountiful repast prepared by Caterer Cornelius McDonald and his assistant, Thomas Butler, received due attention, after which a musical and literary program was given. President W. T. J. M. Bostwick & Sons' sale is going merrily on—a money-saving chance.

WILL JANESVILLE LOSE INDUSTRY?

Badger State Machine Company Deserves Consideration of Business Men.

Shall the Badger State Machine company continue to do business in Janesville? is the question which just now is of peculiar interest. The company is offered a flattering bonus by a town in northern Illinois and Beloit has also made a proposition. The Badger Machine company is practically a new industry and many people are not at all familiar with it. The business is located in the office building of the old cotton company on River street, a building much too small for the growing business. It was started three years ago in a small way and about a year ago Harry Nowlan took an interest in the business and became the business manager.

The company make a specialty of shears and punches, and also have a line of other goods protected by patents. Twelve skilled men are employed in Janesville and owing to a lack of a foundry here a force of six men devote their time to foundry work in Beloit. The company was obliged to turn down one order for $5,000 recently because they could not fill it in time, and they now have orders booked that will keep them running for six months.

What they need more than anything else is a foundry. They sent $1,000 to Beloit last month for castings. They want to remain in Janesville and they ask for a site and $2,000 to be invested in a building. They propose to add $5,000 to this amount and put up and equip a building at an expense of $9,000. As soon as this is done they will employ 25 men and there is no limit to what can be done with the business. The Gazette believes that the industry should be retained in Janesville. It is not an experiment or a speculation. Every dollar invested contributes to permanent prosperity. The men connected with the enterprise are Janesville men. They have no stock to sell, but simply feel that they need a little help to put the business where it belongs. The proposition is before the business men for consideration.

MISS REHAN HAS HER PRIVATE CAR

Talented Actress Travels in a Special—Has an Excellent Company.

Miss Rehan and her company arrived this noon at one o'clock from Rockford where the company played last evening. Miss Rehan travels on her private car the "Rainbow." She politely declines to be interviewed, saying that she has never given a newspaper representative an interview. Present indications are that the audience which greets her this evening will be the largest of the present season, as nearly the entire house is already sold out. Miss Rehan's shoe ad.

an adheres strictly to certain fixed rules of living and while traveling refuses all social engagements, saying that her stage work compels her to devote all her spare moments to complete rest. Miss La Follette, who is a member of the company, is the guest of friends in the city and the question of friends in the city and the question of friends in the city and the question of friends in the city.

The drawing special is composed of the Rehan company car, the "Rainbow," a day coach and a special baggage car. Miss Rehan has never made any one night stands and her present engagement was made conditional with extra comforts as regards traveling. She lives on the car and many of the company, including the ladies, sleep and dine there. Mr. Richman, who is Miss Rehan's leading man, has a reputation in New York and has been on several starring tours of his own. The company is exceptionally strong and is what might be considered an all star cast.

WILL PETITION THE LEGISLATURE

Milwaukee Sportsmen Do Not Agree with Their Social Democratic Friends.

In direct opposition to the opinion of the local members of the social democratic party the sportsmen of Milwaukee have made arrangements to petition the legislature to stop all spring shooting in the state. Their petition to the state legislature is as follows:

"To the Honorable Members of the Assembly and Senate of the State of Wisconsin: We hereby petition your honorable body to repeal section 2 of chapter 449 of the laws of 1903, and to reenact into law the statute passed by the legislature of 1889, chapter 267 of the laws of 1889, prohibiting the shooting of all game during certain months of the spring of the year, with the additional provision that the measure shall also include wild geese as well as other wild fowl.

"We hereby desire to express our sentiment against the killing of game in the spring of the year as being unsportsmanlike, cruel and outrageous, and likely to lead to its speedy extermination."

THE MINORITY PLEASED MANY

A Few Press Comments Upon the Next Serial Story in The Gazette.

The following press comments on the new serial "The Minority," which will be the next continued story published in the Gazette, show the true value of the story:

The New York Independent says: "A powerful and well balanced story of the factory, the stock market and industrial compression. Let this give the impression of weightiness it should be said that there is not a dull page in it."

The Los Angeles Express says: "It is a strong story not overdrawn, but fair to both sides of the question—the man and the master. Mr. Hill has a clean, straightforward style that convinces one of his authority to write such a book."

The Standard, Chicago, says: "The reader experiences a series of novel and agreeable sensations."

The New England, Boston, says: "Possesses above all other qualities the greatest of all—supreme interest."

The Syracuse Herald says: "Altogether we must pronounce the story one of the best novels we have read of late years."

PRESS COMMENT.

East Claire Leader: A five-handed game of freeze out might decide the senatorial fight and save the legislature from a good deal of temptation.

Green Bay Gazette: "One governor is enough." Says the Denver Free Press, but in several states of the union there is a feeling that one governor is too many.

Oshkosh Northwestern: The plot thickens. Friends of Mr. Stephenson have finally asked Gov. La Follette for his support for the Marinette man for the United States senatorship.

Chicago Tribune: A new and excellent use has been found for silver dollars. When shoveled out in large quantities it has been discovered that they act almost instantly in stopping a run on a bank.

Madison Journal: An Ohio judge decides that the keeping of pet snakes is not good grounds for divorce if they are confined. The trouble, however, is that most of them are kept in boots.

Atchison Globe: There was only a handful at a man's funeral. "He had belonged to the church all his life," some one explained, "but there would have been a larger turn out had he belonged to the Eagles."

Milwaukee Sentinel: An Ann Arbor girl is being severely censured for appearing in a public dining hall in her nightgown. They are great sticklers for form and ceremony in the Michigan colony belt.

The sugar plant at Chippewa Falls closed its first season's run on Jan. 4th. It was in operation 60 days and paid out $50,000 for wages and $150,000 for sugar. This is $200,000 added to the circulating medium of our new Wisconsin.

New York Tribune: A run on a bank sometimes illustrates Madison's remark that, though every Athenian citizen was a Socrates, yet every Athenian assembly would be a mob. The collective folly of individually rational beings is one of the wonders of the world.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: The governors of Mississippi and Arkansas express an extremely unfavorable opinion of the negro, but their personal views do not affect in the slightest degree the requirements of the constitution of the United States.

Racine Journal: Supt. Cooley of the Chicago public schools in a late article in an eastern publication strongly denounces the "frats" of our high schools, saying they develop prigs, snobbishness, loafing in mischief and school politics. The swell element he says thus developed is destructive of a proper democratic spirit.

Modern Society: Many people are beginning to regret the fact that a really childish child is becoming something of a rarity. There always have been, and no doubt will continue to be, those children of abnormal mental development known as prodigies. But they have been before the public in astonishing numbers during the past twelve months, particularly as musicians, and perhaps by very reason of being overdone, the craze of prodigies will die a natural death.

Experiment Station at The University issues Neat Booklet for Farmers.

The experiment station of the University of Wisconsin has just published three bulletins by Prof. F. W. Woll on subjects relating to the feeding of stock. The first on "The Relation of Food to the Production of Milk and Butter Fat by Dairy Cows" discusses fully the various factors which determine economic dairy production and give the results of the latest experiments in this field made with the university dairy herd. The second, "The Relations of Food to Dairy Production," is a more popular treatment of the same subject. Prof. Woll and G. A. Olson are joint authors on the bulletin on "Licensed Commercial Feeding Stuffs," in which are presented the results of analysis of commercial feeding stuffs made in accordance with the state feeding law; and the chief adulterations and deficiencies in the guaranteed contents of feeding stuffs. The station has also just published the twenty-first annual report of its work, a volume of 292 pages illustrated with 85 reproductions of buildings, animals, crops, plants, etc.

"I am going to say one thing, nevertheless; and will remain for you to make it a thing hard to be remembered, or the other kind. Will you take what there is of me and make what you can of it?"

She laughed in his face.

"No, my dear David; no, no, no." And after a little pause: "How deliciously transparent you are, to be sure!"

He would have been less than a man if his self-love had not been touched in its most sensitive part.

"I am glad if it amuses you," he frowned. "Only I meant it in all seriousness."

"No, you didn't; you only thought you did," she contradicted, and the brown eyes were still laughing at him. "Let me tell you what you did mean. You are pleased to think that I have helped you—that an obligation has been incurred; and you meant to pay your debt like a man and a gentleman in the only coin a woman is supposed to recognize."

"But if I should say that you are misinterpreting the motive?" he suggested.

"It would make your nice little speech a parody instead of a simple untruth, and I should say no, again, on other, and perhaps better, grounds."

"Name them," he said shortly.

"I will, David, though I am neither a stick nor a stone to do it without wincing. You love another woman with all your heart and soul, and you know it."

"Well? You see I am neither admitting nor denying."

"As if you intended to!" she scoffed. "But don't interrupt me, please. You said I might take what there is of me and make what I can of it; I might make you anything and everything in the world, David, except that which a woman craves most in a husband—a lover."

"His eyes grew dark.

"I wish I knew how much that word means to you, David."

"It means just as much to me as it does to every woman who has ever drawn the breath of life in a passionate world, David. But that isn't all. Leaving Miss Brentwood entirely out of the question, you'd be miserably unhappy."

"Why should I?"

"Because I shouldn't be able to realize a single one of your ideals. I know what they are—what you will expect in a wife. I could make you, a rich man, a successful man, and perhaps I could even give you love; after the first flush of youth is past, the heavenly-affinity sentiment loses its hold and a woman comes to know that if she cares to try hard enough she can love any man who will be thoughtful and gentle, and whose habits of life are not hopelessly at war with her own. But that kind of love doesn't breed love. Your vanity would pique itself for a little while, and then you would know the curse of unsought love and murder me in your heart a thousand times a day. No, David, I have read you to little, and then you are the things you will ask of the woman who takes your name and becomes the mother of your children." She had risen and was standing beside his chair, with her hand lightly touching his shoulder. "Will you go now? There are others coming, and—"

to ask him if he would stand as a "good government" candidate in the special election to fill the house vacancy in the capital district; and in the discussion of ways and means, and the setting of political pins which followed there was little time for soliloquy.

It was three weeks and more after Gov. Marston's call summoning the assembly for an investigative session. Kent had fought his way triumphantly through the special election to a seat in the house, aided and abetted manfully by Ormsby, Hildreth and the entire Trans-Wisconsin influence and vote. And now men were beginning to say that without the tireless blows of the keen-witted, sharp-tongued young corporation lawyer, the jumbo might still have resented itself.

But the house committee, of which Kent was the youngest member and the chairman, had proved incorruptible, and the day of the Gaston wolf-pack was over. Headrights resigned, to escape a worse thing: Meigs came over to the majority with a show of heartiness that made Kent doubly watchful of him; heads fell to the right and left, until at the last there was left only one member of the original cabal to reckon with; the judicial tool of the capitol ring.

Kent had hesitated when MacFarlane's name came up, and the judge never knew that he owed his escape from the inquisitorial house committee, and his permission to resign on the plea of broken health, to a young woman whom he had never seen.

It was Elmore Brentwood who was his intercessor; and the occasion was the last day of the third week of the extra session—a Saturday afternoon and a legislative recess when Kent had borrowed Ormsby's auto-car, and had driven Elmore and Penelope out to Pentland place to look at a house he was thinking of buying. For with means to indulge it, Kent's Gaston-bred mania for plunging in real estate had returned upon him with all the acuteness of a half-satisfied passion.
